Gould and Powderly Come to an Agreement.

THE KNIGHTS TO RESUME WORK

The Appointment of a Minister to Austria Probable—Notes from the National Capital—Chinese Going to Maine.

NEW YORK, March 28.—This morning, at 11 o'clock T. V. Powderly and W. B. McDowell called upon Jay Gould at the latter's residence. There they met Messrs. Gould, Hopkins and George Gould. There was a general discussion of the situation in the southwest by both sides and a better understanding was arrived at than had been had by either party hitherto. After talking until 1 o'clock P. M. the conference was adjourned until evening.

At [illegible] o'clock to-night they met again. At 8:30 Mr. Powderly had to leave to keep an engagement with Congressman O'Neil of St. Louis, chairman of the house committee on labor, who came from Washington to render assistance if possible in [illegible] the strike. McDowell, however, remained with Mr. Gould and his party, and Mr. Gould finally handed to McDowell the following communication:

PRESIDENT'S OFFICE, MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILROAD, March 28.

T. V. Powderly, G. M. W.—Dear Sir:—Replying to your letter of this afternoon I write to say that I will [illegible] morning send the following telegraphic instructions to Mr. Hoxie, general manager of the Missouri Pacific railroad at St. Louis: "In resuming the movement of trains on the [illegible] and in the employing of laborers in the several departments of this company give preference to our late employes, whether they are Knights of Labor or not, except that you will not employ any person who [illegible] injured the company's property during the late strike, nor will we discharge any person who has taken service with the company during the strike."

We [illegible] no objection to arbitrating any differences between the employes and the company, past or future. Hoping the above will be satisfactory, I am yours very truly,

JAY GOULD, President.

INSTRUCTIONS FROM POWDERLY.

Henceforth [illegible] the Knights of Labor [illegible] the following telegram:

Martin Irons, chairman executive board district assembly 101, St. Louis: President Jay Gould has [illegible] our proposition for arbitration and telegraphs Vice-President Hoxie. Order the men to work at once. By order of the executive board. T. V. POWDERLY, G. M. W.

The executive board also sent out the following telegram:

To Knights of Labor now on a strike in the southwest: President Jay Gould has consented to our proposition for arbitration and so telegraphs Vice-President Hoxie. Pursuant to telegraphic instructions sent to the chairman of the executive board district assembly 101, you are directed to resume work at once. By order of the executive board.

T. V. POWDERLY, G. M. W.

A CONGRATULATORY TELEGRAM.

Congressman O'Neill arrived from Washington in [illegible] to get the news. He sent the following congratulatory telegram at once:

To the Missouri Republican:—A settlement has been effected. Gould consents to arbitration. The executive committee of the Knights of Labor has ordered the men to resume work. Congratulate everybody on the results. JOHN J. O'NEILL.

Congressman O'Neill said that the labor committee had prepared a bill which he would present in the house to-morrow, in which he thought were provisions which would prevent future trouble like this. He said that some 9000 or 10,000 people had been directly affected by the strike and that unnumbered thousands had indirectly been affected. He expressed great pleasure that the end came so peaceably. He returned to Washington at midnight.

Messrs. Powderly and McDowell will meet Mr. Gould to-morrow morning at 9:30 by appointment.

O'NEILL GOES TO NEW YORK.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Congressman John J. O'Neill, chairman of the house committee on labor, left for New York this afternoon to confer with T. V. Powderly and Jay Gould as to a settlement of the southwestern railroad troubles. Before leaving, O'Neill invoked by letter the interference of the president in bringing together two antagonized members of his family.

In the house to-morrow Mr. O'Neill's long promised bill on the arbitration question will be introduced. He asserts that it is national, operative and constitutional. It is entitled "A bill creating boards of arbitration for the speedy settlement of controversies and differences between common carriers engaged in inter-state and territorial commerce or business and their employes." The preamble recites that by section 8 of article 1 of the constitution of the United States congress is invested with full power and authority to provide for the general welfare of the people of the United States, to regulate commerce among the several states, to constitute tribunals inferior to the supreme court of the United States, and to make all the laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers. The bill provides for the formation within the law of a tribunal consisting of one on each side of the controversy, the two to select a third. If they do not select, it is provided within three days the United States court of jurisdiction in which the trouble exists shall do so. This tribunal shall have the standing of a United States commission with all its powers, and shall be paid in like manner.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

WILL PROBABLY APPOINT A MINISTER TO AUSTRIA.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The president has evidently had in mind the appointment of a minister to Austria. Yesterday a Californian called on him and the president brought up the subject. He dropped several remarks which showed that he had young Haggin in mind. The Californian said to the president that if he intended to appoint Haggin he hoped he would not do it till after the fall elections.

"Why?" asked Cleveland in surprise.

"There is a growing disfavor in this country," replied the Californian, "and especially in our state, against the appointment of rich men or rich men's sons to office simply because they are rich. It is very easy for a young man of wealth to secure the best of recommendations. He is usually a club man and all of his rich associates sign his papers as a matter of course, and his society friends are made to do duty in the same way. There is a tendency nowadays for such men to try to get their sons in government places of honor. The working people, the mass of the democrats, would resent at the polls the appointment of young Haggin simply on the ground that he is rich. The strained relations between labor and capital would make his appointment objectionable."

The president replied that he would not act at once, the protest of the Californian evidently having made an impression on his mind. [illegible] strong influences at work to get Haggin the place. Senator Fair is urging his appointment.

THE LOWELL BANKRUPTCY BILL.

NEW YORK, March [illegible].—The Tribune's Washington special says: Friends of the Lowell bankruptcy bill have nearly completed their canvass among the members of the house, and will hold a meeting on Monday to compare notes and decide upon a plan of action. A friend of the bill estimates that it will have a fair majority in the house. The unexpected support of the bill developed among southern and western men is attributed to the provision which prevents the throwing into voluntary bankruptcy of farmers, mechanics, etc., although it allows them voluntarily to take advantage of the act.

NORTHERN PACIFIC CAR SHOPS BURNED.

EASTERN NEWS ITEMS

CHINESE GOING TO MAINE.

NEW YORK, March 28.—A Portland, Maine, special says: An effort is quietly being made to introduce Chinese into Maine to displace some 6000 to 8000 Maine people. The first proposition came from the secretary of an association having headquarters in San Francisco. One firm that employs 1000 hands was offered that number of Chinese laborers at $3 a week and board. The secretary of the company stated that great numbers of its clients had been thrown out of work by the labor movement and agitation on the Pacific coast, and it felt that it was necessary for several thousand of them to go East, where the people would have less objection to their presence. The firm in question entertain the proposition.

CLEARING HOUSE RETURNS.

BOSTON, March 28.—From the reports of the leading clearing houses of the United States it is shown that total gross bank exchanges for the week ending March 27 were $915,783,7[illegible]0, an increase of 45.5 as compared with the corresponding week last year.

A GAMBLER COMMITS SUICIDE.

DENVER, March 28.—A Leadville special to the News says: John Timmons, an old professional gambler, [illegible] here a few days since without money. Failing to secure employment he to-day took a dose of laudanum from the effects of which he died. Deceased was [illegible] years old and a native of Kentucky. He spent the most of his life in Cincinnati and St. Louis, and leaves a wife and four children in the latter city.

KITTLEMAN WINS.

DENVER, March 28.—A 100-yard foot race at Pueblo between M. K. Kittleman of Kansas City and John Knight of Pueblo, for $1000 and gate money, was won by the former in ten seconds. He gave Knight fifteen feet start and then won by twenty feet.

CALIFORNIA

A MYSTERY OF THE SEA.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—Mariners of this city are speculating as to the identity of a vessel found floating bottom upward by Capt. James Little of the British bark Assel, on a recent voyage from Wilmington, Cal., to Australia. Many are of the opinion that the capsized craft was most probably the Levi Stevens, of which nothing has been heard or seen for a long time, while others think they are accurate in conjecturing that it is the Guardian, from Puget sound, now due at Valparaiso.

A FIERCE PRIZE FIGHT.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—One of the fiercest [illegible] glove contests ever fought on this coast took place in a barn at West Berkeley this afternoon. The match was for a purse of $200, and the glove [illegible] were Jack Brady of San Francisco and [illegible] Matthews of Australia, the latter knocking his opponent out. The fight lasted six rounds, during which both men received terrible punishment.

A [illegible] REUNION PROBABLE.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—A special to the Examiner from Washington says: "A Sunday [illegible] prints the following: [illegible] Senator Fair is in correspondence with his former wife, from whom he was recently divorced, and the prospect is that a reunion of the separated [illegible]."

ARIZONA

A FIGHT WITH MEXICANS.

TOMBSTONE, March 28.—Frank Leslie [illegible] mounted U. S. customs inspectors, while searching for smugglers at La Noria, on the line twenty-five miles southwest of this city, were attacked by Mexicans. [illegible] rode across the line, the Mexicans firing at him when on American soil. [illegible] at the Mexicans, and it is thought wounded one of them. The Mexicans [illegible].

REBEL ANTICIPATIONS

Jefferson Davis's Journey to Montgomery in 1861—Atlanta Constitution.

The journey of Mr. Davis to Montgomery naturally recalls his last trip on public business to that city from his home in Mississippi. It was about the middle of February, 1861, when Mr. Davis was notified of his election as provisional president of the Confederate congress then in session at Montgomery. The announcement was not altogether a surprise to him, but it did not bring with it any undue elation. His preference was for a military command, and he had been led to believe that he would be tendered the highest appointment in the army of the new republic.

The younger generation of these cold-blooded days can not be made to understand the feverish excitement which pervaded all classes of our people in the opening months of 1861. Red hot is too mild a term to be applied to it. The Confederacy was a boiling caldron, and it was at white heat.

This was the condition of popular sentiment when Mr. Davis left Mississippi and journeyed to the Southern capital where he was to be inaugurated. At every station on the route crowds of people assembled and cheered the president-elect with the wildest enthusiasm. Every man and every boy wore the blue cockades which had become the emblem of secession. These crowds of people had been inflamed by real and imaginary wrongs to the highest pitch of fury, and their voice was unanimously for war and plenty of it. It was a difficult task for a statesman to satisfy such audiences, but Mr. Davis passed through the ordeal splendidly. Remembering the grave responsibility which he was about to assume, his utterances were in the main dignified and temperate. Other statesmen on the same train expressed themselves more freely, and it was generally reported at the time that the most loudly applauded speech of the trip was a brief one made by a sanguine gentleman who spoke as follows: "Fellow citizens, if there is to be war, let it come. We can be ready in ten days. In another ten days we will take Washington; Philadelphia will be ours ten days later. In ten days more New York will fall into our hands. I [illegible] want [illegible] because we don't care for [illegible]." The cheering was heard several miles.

At [illegible] there was a ripple of unpleasant excitement. A [illegible] named [illegible] attempted to interrupt Mr. Davis in an abusive [illegible]. [illegible] Pistols and knives were drawn in the crowd, and Mr. Davis was with difficulty restrained from taking an active hand in punishing the disturber of the meeting. Both parties, however, were so evenly balanced in Chattanooga that a collision would have led to very serious results, and it was fortunately avoided.

Reaching Atlanta the distinguished traveler stopped at the Trout House, the Kimball of those days. The hotel was a large four-story building situated on the northeastern corner of Decatur and Pryor streets. Just opposite was an inclosed field with a little shrubbery in it, called a park. In this open space, during a cold drizzling rain, stood thousands of citizens eager to hear the great Mississippian. When Mr. Davis appeared on the balcony of the hotel the people went wild. The orator's appearance came fully up to the popular ideal. He was at that time just 53, in the very prime of a magnificent manhood. His eagle eye and his dark hair, then without a thread of silver, set off to marked advantage the strong, firm features, which had not only the calm repose of marble, but its pallor also. The spare, erect figure, with its elastic carriage, showed the trained soldier, and the speaker's ringing voice, with a sort of metallic clangor in its vibrant tones, left an impression of power, and made the hearers feel that they were in the presence of one born to command.

The Atlanta speech was, under the circumstances, a model address. Accustomed as he was to listening senates, the orator also knew how to adapt himself to a popular audience. He gave a [illegible] review of the causes leading to the secession of the Southern states, and showed where the necessity [illegible] homogeneous people with our peculiar institutions to have a government of its own. War he regarded as an improbable contingency, but he held out the idea that if it had to come it would be more likely to be fought on Northern soil than on this side of the Potomac.

After that speech Atlanta belonged to Jefferson Davis. No man ever succeeded with a single speech in so completely capturing the hearts of our people. When our illustrious visitor resumed his triumphal journey many of our citizens accompanied him to see the inauguration. It was an ovation from beginning to end, and when the soldierly figure stood in the presence of an immense multitude at the capitol in Montgomery and reverently but serenely took the oath of office as president of the Provisional Government of the Confederate States of America the blessings of millions of people were showered upon his head, and if any Southerner doubted that the new ruler was destined to lead the new born nation onward and upward to liberty, prosperity and power, he wisely [illegible] his peace.

The Reign of Terror Continues in Belgium.

TROOPS EVERYWHERE DEMANDED

An Argument against Home Rule—An American Killed by Mexican Outlaws—An American Paper Suspended—Etc.

BRUSSELS, March 28.—Dispatches from Charleroi say there has been further rioting in that town, resulting in the killing of several persons and the wounding of many others. The rioters at Jumet, upon the approach of the troops sent to disperse them, placed 200 women in the front ranks. The troops opened fire and many women were wounded. The strike is extending to Namur. Additional troops have been called from Brussels to quell the disorder.

Later advices from Charleroi report that the town is calmer and that there will probably be no further riotous demonstrations by the strikers. As a body the strikers are destitute and are compelled to beg for bread. The men are desperate and threaten violence if their wants are not supplied. A number of men will go to work to-morrow. They will be armed with revolvers with which to defend themselves in case of an attack by the strikers.

NOTES FROM BRUSSELS.

BRUSSELS, March 28.—The authorities have prohibited the sale of newspapers to the people of this city. Two classes of the militia have been called out for service.

The city of Liege was quiet to-day. It is expected that work will be resumed there to-morrow. A [illegible] signed by the governor of Hainault has been placarded throughout Charleroi proclaiming a state of siege throughout the district and authorizing troops to cut down and fire upon rioters that refuse to disperse.

Strikes are threatened at Flenu and Quaregnon, and troops have been sent to those places. It is asserted that [illegible] organized the present labor movements.

TROOPS NEEDED IN ALL DIRECTIONS.

CHARLEROI, March [illegible].—Appeals for troops have been received from Chatelet, Chatelineau, [illegible] and Couillet, where several factories [illegible] have been wrecked and where many [illegible] have been killed or wounded in collision with the troops. Only the civic guards remain [illegible] they are now exhausted from [illegible] vigilance. The [illegible] has been compelled to call for [illegible] to defend the streets. News of disorder comes from all directions. There was a sharp encounter last evening with a crowd of rioters who were trying to enter Charleroi. Two of the rioters were killed and several wounded and the others fled. The strikers defy the troops and serious [illegible] expected. Detachments of cavalry are scouring the country to suppress armed beggars who have been terrorizing and extorting money from villagers. It is announced that a meeting of colliery managers will be held at [illegible] where [illegible] are flocking to that town.

ENGLAND

AN ARGUMENT AGAINST HOME RULE.

NEW YORK, March 28.—A cable special says: The Irish loyal and patriotic union publishes the first portion of their answer to Gladstone's request for information concerning the condition of Ireland. They aim to show the supremacy of the national league, whose committees act as tribunals, exercise authority of courts, hear complaints, summon parties to appear before them, pronounce decisions, pass sentence, enforce decrees by boycotting, cancel contracts, award damages and arbitrarily limit the liberties and private rights of loyal citizens. Over one hundred cases supported by testimony are cited.

A member of parliament cables to the Herald: Expectation in ministerial circles is that the government cannot possibly survive beyond June and that dissolution will take place early in July. I know that preparations are being made in important quarters for elections about that date.

A WOMAN BANKRUPT.

NEW YORK, March 28.—The Herald's London special of March 27th says: An aristocratic sensation has been caused by the appearance in the bankruptcy court of Miss Constance Maria Hesketh, sister of the baronet who married Senator Sharon's daughter. She was ruined financially by the expenses of her hunting box at Tarporley, in the center of the Cheshire hunting district. Some of her servants claimed two years' wages. Her liabilities amounted to $50,000. She was ordered to be publicly examined on April 14th.

WILL DESERT GLADSTONE.

LONDON, March 28.—It is expected that there will be six secessions from Gladstone's party outside of the cabinet. The report that Lord Spencer would resign unless the land bill satisfied him is not true. He has full confidence in Mr. Gladstone and assisted the latter in drafting his bill.

DEATH OF AN ARCHBISHOP.

LONDON, March 28.—The death is announced of the Most Rev. Richard Chenevix French, D. D., formerly archbishop of Dublin diocese, church of Ireland.

DEATH OF A DRAMATIST.

LONDON, March 28.—Sir Henry Taylor, dramatist, is dead, aged 86 years.

MEXICO

AN AMERICAN KILLED BY OUTLAWS.

GALVESTON, March 27.—A News San Antonio special says: A dispatch received here to-day conveys intelligence of the assassination by Mexican outlaws of Louis Feltner in Santa Clara canyon while en route from Jiminco to silver mines in the state of Durango. The murdered man was once wealthy and a prominent citizen of Chicago. For the past six years he was engaged in mining in Mexico. He was a lessee of the Azul mines, owned by parties in San Antonio. This makes the third American murdered in the canyon this year.

SOUTH AMERICA

DECREE AGAINST AN AMERICAN PAPER.

PANAMA (via Galveston), March 28.—Great excitement has been occasioned by a decree of San Domingo ordering the suspension of the American newspaper the Star and Herald, notwithstanding the official declaration of freedom of the press. There has been, it is claimed, no unfriendly act towards or censure of the government to warrant such proceeding. The manager of the paper has protested before the American consul, who will seek redress by diplomatic means.

TURKEY

DISASTROUS GUN TRIALS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 28.—A series of experiments have been progressing in the Dardanelles, to test the methods of several new Krupp guns. Several gunners have been killed and a number of guns have been found to be worthless. Attempts have been made to keep these disasters secret, but without avail.

CHINA

A FAILURE.

LONDON, March 28.—Advices received from Pekin are to the effect that the efforts to form a French syndicate have proved a failure.

PORTUGAL.

FREE EXPORTATION OF GOLD AND SILVER.

LISBON, March 28.—The Portuguese government has issued a decree, authorizing the free exportation of gold and silver coin.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

The following is a report made by a competent engineer who recently inspected the Panama canal with a view of ascertaining what amount of work has actually been done:

That the Panama canal will be successfully finished does not admit of a doubt; too much money has already been sunk in the enterprise to permit of its abandonment. At the same time it is equally certain that it will not be finished within anything like the time stated by De Lesseps, nor within anything like his estimate of the cost. A recent and very careful examination of the line of the canal enables me to make reliable statements in regard to the progress of the work.

Of course at the outset, considerable time and money was spent in the erection of the dwellings, hospitals, stables, machine shops, canteens, etc., required for the accommodation of the men, animals and machinery engaged in the prosecution of the work. In this respect the route seems now pretty well supplied, and it must be admitted that these buildings have been well constructed, and on carefully chosen sites. At Colon, which will be the entrance to the canal on the Atlantic side, the town has been paved by the canal company and the entire appearance of the place beautified by the planting of trees and such like improvements. From this point to Gatun, a distance of about eight miles, the line has been dredged and the water let in, but I have been told by engineers connected with the American Dredging company, which executed the work, that the depth of this channel will not average eight feet, and at no place will it reach a greater depth than twelve feet. This statement is corroborated by the size of the vessels which have been sent up the water way. Near Gatun a new channel for the Chagres river is being cut. At this place the river makes a long curve, and its course has to be changed in order to allow the canal to pass between its natural channel and the mountains to the west. The length of the new channel will be about six miles.

One trouble which shows itself at the Culebra cut and other places is the difficulty of disposing of the material excavated, and this is a difficulty which grows as the work proceeds. Between Obispo and Summit dirt has to be run three-quarters of a mile before a dumping ground is found. This is a considerable item of expense, and it is bound to grow larger.

As regards the men employed in directing the work I may say that they are nearly all from the south of France principally, and are lacking in the experience necessary to enable them to control working forces. As a consequence, there is great waste of time and material. Another thing, they are nearly all banded together in "rings" for the purpose of cheating. The time keepers swindle with the pay rolls, the sub-contractor and the engineer join hands to swindle on measurements, the contractor and the officials in the head office join hands to swindle on the estimates, and so the thing goes all round from the highest to the lowest. Everybody is cheating, and so of course the construction of the canal is costing much more than it ought.

Congregational Statistics.

From the Pacific.

The Year Book for 1886 has come to hand. We wish it could have been here six weeks earlier. We hope that the brethren whose duty it is to make the returns will soon learn to be exact and prompt. We are sorry to see that California is among the states that are behind in the payment of dues. We are gratified with the general excellence of the statistics. We are pleased with the special features of this number of the Year Book. We are thankful to the compilers for their diligence and painstaking. Some items of information follow: Number of churches in the United States 41[illegible]0, increase in 1885, 78. Number of members 418,564, increase of members in 1885 17,015. Number of pupils in Sunday schools, 510,[illegible], increase in 1885 [illegible]. Benevolent contributions for the year $1,700,35[illegible], increase in 1885 $176,811. Home expenditures (some states not reported), $4,[illegible], increase (so far as reported) in 1885, $684,[illegible]. Number of students in theological seminaries [illegible], increase from previous year 44. The value of all the houses of worship in the United States is estimated at $4,[illegible]. The invested funds exceed the church debts by $725,372. The estimate of Congregational ministers, churches and members for all the world is: Churches, 11,780; ministers, 10,893; members, 1,[illegible]. Some of the international contrasts are these: In North America the membership is 410,000; in South America 4[illegible]. In England there are 3825 churches, in Russia [illegible], in Germany 1. The membership of Congregational churches in missionary lands—Africa, China, India, Japan, Mexico, Polynesia, Turkey and the West Indies—is about 116,000.

Democrats and the Tariff.

Louisville Courier-Journal, March 1[illegible].

The democratic party is or is not for a reform of the tariff; let there be no shirking of this question. The democratic party did vote for a reduction of wool duties, and it should follow up that step by voting for a repeal of duties on coal, iron ore and dyestuffs on lumber as well. The Kentucky legislature to the contrary notwithstanding. Courage counts in this struggle as it counts everywhere else. The democratic party is wasting precious time. It will have to go before the people next fall asking a popular indorsement. It is putting itself in excellent trim for defeat. It is exhibiting a marvelous capacity for doing nothing, and unless it destroys the reputation it has earned it may very probably be intrusted with the duty of doing nothing for the next two years. A failure to deal vigorously and boldly with the tariff question will greatly endanger the ascendancy of the party in the next house of representatives. It has frittered away all other opportunities, and it will be judged now by this alone.

What It Comes To.

Port Townsend Argus.

Messrs. DeLion & Libby have nearly a dozen vessels now on the Sound which they have contracted to load. If they accede to the demands of the longshoremen they get next to nothing for their own time and labor. If they delay the vessels they are liable for heavy demurrage. It would seem that there is no limit at which wages can be placed to make employers safe from strikes. Laboring men are injuring themselves immeasurably, and are bringing disaster upon public business by their unreasonable demands. They are killing the goose that lays all their golden eggs, are frightening capital away and are seriously unsettling the business of the country. The turbulent leaders among them who fulminate discontent and incite strikes and boycotts are enemies of public welfare. Their pestiferous business is in no wise impeded by the departure of Chinese, as is proven at Tacoma.

The Natural Harvest.

Port Townsend Argus.

Mayor Weisbach of Tacoma is probably realizing by this time what it is to have chickens come home to roost. The dragon's teeth he sowed at the head of a mob a few short months ago when the Chinese population of our sister town were driven out by force are springing up now in the shape of a crop of lawless laborers who resort to force and riot measures whenever employers fail to accede to their dictates as to wages and the discharge of employes. Mr. Weisbach has had to issue a proclamation to put down a proceeding not half as disgraceful as those in which he figured so prominently last fall. The result is a legitimate outcome and fruition of the vicious and hurtful sentiment bred in the public mind through those anti-Chinese outrages. It will not be strange if other and similar fruits appear yet ere the noxious seeds are stamped out.

Fine Fireworks on a Mountain Top.

Naples Letter in the Baltimore Sun.

Mt. Vesuvius is receiving a great deal of attention from strangers at this time. Nightly its internal emotions show signs of increasing, presenting beautiful scenes of effulgent illuminations, deeply outlined against the sky with a vermilion tinge. A few nights ago an unusual display of its vomiting power was witnessed. Occasional volumes of red hot lava issued forth in sudden bursts that ran down the side of the mountain in one long stream of flowing red, crimsoning as the contact with the atmosphere cooled it, like the decreasing heat of red hot iron. The next morning snow covered the scarred surface of the mountain from the summit nearly half way down to the base, while the ever exhaling smoke ascended into space like a long white plume.

Selkirk's Island.

The island of Juan Fernandez, upon which Alexander Selkirk, the prototype of Robinson Crusoe, spent his four solitary years, has never since been inhabited until twelve years ago, when the present Gov. Rodt settled upon it with a small colony. Rodt is a Switzer. In 1866 he fought for Austria against the Prussians, and in 1870 for France. After the defeat of the French he emigrated to Chili and made himself useful to the government, at whose invitation he undertook the colonization of Robinson Crusoe's lonely island. Here he has resided for the last twelve years as governor and judge. Most of the settlers over whom he presides are German and Swiss. Nearly all the vegetation of the temperate zone thrives upon Juan Fernandez.

Valor of the Veterans who now Wear Gray.

Ex-rebel Gen. Preston to an Interviewer.

Once when Sir Garnet Wolseley, the present commander of the English army, asked me at a dinner party at Montreal if the South could not have held out longer, I replied: "As a mere matter of physical endurance, yes; but do you know, sir, that in the four years of war through which we passed the South alone, with its few millions of people, lost more men in battle than England did in all its wars from William the Conqueror to Queen Victoria." I spoke with some feeling and it ended in a discussion as to the reason why the South did not continue to fight.

Longstreet's Comment.

Washington Letter.

Gen. James Longstreet, white-haired but well preserved, went to-day with friends to see the Cyclorama of the battle of Manassas, or the second battle of Bull Run, in which he is represented as a dark-haired man on horseback in a group around Gen. Robert E. Lee. He looked at the picture and heard the explanation of the man in charge, in which the movements of Gen. Longstreet were frequently commented upon, with great interest. When he was asked what he thought of it, he said: "Well, it seems to be about all here except the run."

Jefferson Davis will Lecture.

Baltimore Sun.

Jefferson Davis has accepted an invitation to deliver an address in Montgomery, Alabama, in May, for the benefit of Confederate charity. The papers there are already agitating the question of securing a building to accommodate the great crowd which it is expected will desire to hear Mr. Davis. A cotton warehouse capable of comfortably seating 2000 people will probably be secured.

Church Fairs.

New York Christian Advocate.

It is coming to be observed that marked and genuine revivals and fairs on a large scale cannot proceed in the same congregation at the same time. So that if any people have had a great and successful fair in any particular season, you may be quite sure that they have had no very marked or general revival of religion.

An Opinion from the Rural Districts.

Brooklyn Eagle (Dem.)

A Goshen farmer came to town last Saturday to settle some business. He was asked by one of the Washington market men what folks out his way thought of President Cleveland. "Wa-al," drawled the countryman, "the democrats are just too mad to give any opinion, and the republicans are too full of laugh to have any."

The Courage of Conviction.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Globe Democrat has been boycotted for intimating that government by law is better than government by district committee. It is better to stand a boycott for that sentiment than to retract it.

But few articles have reached such a world wide reputation as Angostura Bitters. For over 50 years they have been the acknowledged standard regulators of the digestive organs. Their success has incited imitations. Be sure you get the genuine article manufactured only by Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons.

ANOTHER ADVERSE REPORT.

There never was any doubt that the Hawaiian treaty—miscalled a treaty of reciprocity—was bought through the senate. It was one of those jobs that monopoly could afford to pay for heavily, and moreover could afford to protect by the same means employed to secure the original advantage. Committee after committee of the two houses of congress has reported against the treaty during six years past; but the matter has got no further. The immense financial and monopoly interests created by the treaty succeeded in defeating every attempt to prevent renewal of the treaty when it might have expired by limitation on notice given, and more recently the same interests have been able to prevent the adoption of measures looking to modification of the treaty through negotiation.

The committee on ways and means of the house of representatives has recently been considering the subject again; and again there is a report which shows how partial and one-sided the treaty is in its operation, and how injurious to the interests of the United States. The report shows that the treaty, instead of increasing our exports to the islands as was expected, has caused them relatively to decrease; that therefore it has not helped our trade, and that the argument that the treaty would give our country an advantage over others, in its relations with the islands, has proven entirely fallacious. An enormously increased balance of trade against us is a consequence of the treaty; this balance is paid by us in money to the sugar planters, some of whom live on the islands and some in England and Germany; while the money so obtained from the United States is largely used in purchase of European goods in preference to those of the United States.

The effect of the treaty on the prices of sugar is also discussed by the committee, and here, as in other particulars, the result is against the interests of our own people. For a number of years before the treaty the price of granulated sugar in New York and San Francisco was about the same; but since the treaty has been made it has been on the whole much higher at the latter place, though just now, owing to a variety of causes, there is little difference. Again, it is shown that during nine years we have remitted duties to the amount of $22,818,085, nearly all of which has gone into the coffers of a close monopoly, consisting of foreign capitalists in combination with refining establishments at San Francisco; while the total value of our exports to the islands during the same period was $22,872,371, the profits on which could not have amounted to one-tenth part of the sum lost to the treasury of the United States through remission of duties and to the people of our Pacific states and territories through monopoly prices for sugar during this long period.

It is also reported by the committee that since the treaty was adopted American influence at the islands has steadily declined. Great stress was laid on the argument in 1875, when the treaty was under discussion, that this country would gain much under the treaty in the event of a war between it and any European or Asiatic power. It was then claimed that we would have the benefit of a harbor for our fleets and coaling stations to supply our vessels, and that American influence in the islands would predominate. But the treaty contains no provisions that would give us such rights. Again, the treaty, as it enriches the islands at our expense, makes them independent of us and turns away the sentiment of their rulers from us. It is evident, the report says, that we gain nothing politically or commercially through the treaty, but lose much in all ways. The articles which the islands import from us they will continue to import, whether the treaty is continued or not. They cannot obtain lumber, cattle and breadstuffs so cheap in England as they can in this country, and they will continue to buy in the cheapest market. They cannot afford to put a prohibitory duty on such necessary articles which they cannot produce, nor get so cheap anywhere else.

This report is the exact truth throughout. It is founded on materials furnished by the treasury department, and its statement cannot be questioned. The present secretary of the treasury, like his predecessors, desires that notice shall be given that the treaty will be discontinued, in accord with a provision in it to that effect, but the agents of the monopoly, in whose behalf duties amounting to nearly $25,000,000 have been remitted, and who besides, through the agency of the treaty, have kept sugars on this coast up to monopoly prices during the last ten years retain their busy agents at Washington, and no doubt will again prevent action, as they have so often done heretofore.

CLAP-TRAPS OF THE TIME.

Henry George is noted as a writer on speculative social philosophy. It is needless therefore to say that he runs to utopianism. He is one of those writers who can string together a lot of phrases calculated to make men think that the social and industrial organization of the world is all wrong, and that property as well as opportunities to acquire it are very unjustly distributed; and yet who never propose any kind of remedy for what they call the chief of all the evils that afflict and oppress mankind.

Of this description was a short article by Mr. George, published in the last issue of THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN. He says: "The revolt against industrial slavery has begun." This we may interpret as a declaration of rebellion against the mandate that in the sweat of his face man shall eat bread. Again: "The spirit of the age, the rising spirit that proclaims the equality of men, bids the hewer of wood and the drawer of water aspire to the full estate of a freeman." So it does: and was it not ever so? But is this going to reverse the everlasting condition that men cannot have anything unless they earn it? Mr. George says further: "It is the 'House of Have' and the 'House of Want' that are coming into collision, and they everywhere jostle each other." But does it require a philosopher of these latter days to tell us that? Sancho Panza remarked long ago this same "collision" between the "Haves" and the "Have-nots." It is the oldest of collisions and will be the latest on this earth.

But Mr. George, like other philosophers of the quackeries of socialism, declares that the problem now presented "is the inevitable result of conditions which, in the midst of overproduction, condemn men to biting want, and amid millions of acres of untilled land make the mere 'leave to toil' a thing to be struggled for." Here again are assumptions utterly false. Whose fault is it that these men of whom he so plaintively speaks do not possess themselves of these millions of acres of untilled lands, which they may have for the taking, and earn their own independent living, regardless of employers, wages, overproduction, strikes and boycotts,—whose fault but their own? In days gone by we did this thing in this country, and anybody who wants to do it may do it yet, and easier than then. Here in the Northwest we have scarcely two inhabitants to the square mile; and three-fourths of the whole country is without an occupant, and the government offering land free of cost to any who will take it. Yet even here men complain that they have no chance to live!

The utterances of men like Henry George consist of glittering generalities, false assumptions and fruitless platitudes. They lead ignorant and thoughtless men to look for resources where no resources ever have been or ever will be found. Reduced to a plain and practical statement, the philosophy that underlies such complaints is simply and only this, namely, that no man in this world ought to have more land, more goods, more money, or more property of any kind, than another man; and the contention is that he who earns more, inherits more, or acquires more through methods of business than his fellows, is a robber, who ought to be compelled to disgorge. This end reached, and we have the barbarism of a common poverty, like that prevailing among all tribes of men in all ages, where property is not. Accumulation of property and protection of it is the very basis of civilization. Property has its duties and obligations, undoubtedly. But it is not its duty to recognize the assumption that no man shall have more than another man. This at once is annihilation of property and destruction of civilization. Here there is every opportunity for men to get a living and acquire property that ever existed, and more; and they who are now complaining of their alleged hard lot are no better than we were who wrought our way here years ago, and were forced besides to defend ourselves against the Indians while we were doing it.

THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

The house committee on rivers and harbors has at last completed the appropriation bill, which as it will be reported to congress, appropriates a total of $15,164,200. Of this amount Oregon and Washington get somewhat more than a proportionate share, the committee having recognized the necessities of our situation and the fairness of our claims for special favor. At an early stage of its work the committee determined to limit the total appropriation to $11,000,000, but it was found impossible to keep within this limit and at the same time to carry on in a proper way the many works already begun. It was found by the gentlemen of the committee, as it will be by all who investigate this subject, that business prudence as well as justice requires a larger expenditure than the amount at first proposed. The recommendations of the committee will be accompanied by a report explaining fully the considerations involved and it is believed that the bill will be passed as it now stands. There is some danger, however, that it will be scaled down. Those states whose rivers and harbors are improved already are opposed to it of course, and with others who oppose it from a selfish business policy, they form a powerful force in congress, not sufficiently powerful indeed to change the policy of the government in the matter of internal improvement, but to put restrictions upon it and limit its benefits. The record of the past few years affords many evidences of obstructive influence.

The whole power of New York both in congress and over the press of the country, is exerted to the utmost every year and will be always, to limit or defeat the river and harbor bill. New York City, as the great shipping depot of the country, does not want other ports opened or made easier to commerce. The improvement at the mouth of the Mississippi took a large business from New York and the improvement of the Baltimore harbor will take away still more business. The rapid development of the country constantly expands the volume of New York's trade in spite of these losses, but the New Yorkers realize that they would have still more if there were no other ports and that the improvement of any port is a direct disadvantage. The opposition of New York to national aid for rivers and harbors is natural on the good business principle of self-interest. So long as this motive remains, and it is likely to exist always, the opposition of New York to river and harbor appropriations will be encountered. And it is none the less effective because it is not outspoken.

The present bill makes, all things considered, very liberal provision for Oregon and Washington. Following are the items: For the mouth of the Columbia, $150,000; for the Cascade locks, $150,000; for lower Willamette and Columbia rivers, $100,000; for Yaquina bay, $80,000; for Coos Bay, $35,000; for the Coquille river and its entrance, $20,000; for the upper Columbia, including Snake river, $10,000; for the upper Willamette, $10,000; for the Chehalis river, $2500; for the Cowlitz river, $2000; for the Stillaguamish, Nooksack, Snohomish and Snoqualmie rivers, $10,000. In only one case is the award notably insufficient. There ought to be provision for a complete survey of the upper Columbia river above the mouth of the Snake. It is provided that the money shall be available upon the approval of the bill by the president.

LAW AND ORDER.

A paper of Southern Oregon, the Grant's Pass Courier, says: "THE OREGONIAN in its issue of the 17th inst. certainly reaches the climax of inconsistency. For weeks it has been holding up its hands in holy horror at the violation of law and order with which it charges the opponents of the Chinese. But now it drops the flimsy mask it has worn and appears as the unblushing advocate of violence and murder. It says: 'The Chinese at work in exposed places ought to arm themselves well, keep out a watch, and shoot with deadliest effect, when the ku klux come to raid them. Employers should instruct and encourage them to do it.' Is this THE OREGONIAN's idea of law and order?"

It is. Moreover, it is the law's idea of law and order. Suppose masked ruffians should come to your house in dead of night, break in your doors and order you to leave, would you not shoot and kill, if you could? It certainly would be your duty to do so. The law invites you, in such circumstances, to shoot and kill; it calls upon you to destroy your criminal assailants with any weapon at your hand, and it will not even put you under arrest or examination for your action. Now the Chinaman has precisely the same right, moral and legal, to defend himself and his habitation against criminal assailants that you have. And it is well known that the Chinese at work in many localities about Portland, having been advised of their rights under the law, have provided themselves with arms, have erected barricades and defences, and certainly will shoot, if further attacks are made upon them by the masked scoundrels and criminals of kukluxism.

The paper quoted from above gravely argues that if the Chinese, attacked by these masked ruffians and criminals, should kill any of their assailants, it would be "assassination" and "murder." On the contrary it would be an act which the law fully justifies; an act in the interest of law and order; an act which the law of nature imposes, and the law of man supports; an act for which no man on this earth ever was punished by law or ever will be; an act which all right-thinking people applaud and approve, how much soever they may deplore the crime that made it necessary to do it. Yes; the Chinaman, or any other man, visited and assailed at night in his house or camp by these masked criminals, should shoot if he can, and shoot with deadliest possible effect. This is law, and it is the way to secure order. When criminals know they are likely to meet such a reception they will be somewhat less likely to go upon their lawless raids.

HOOD AND ST. HELENS.

We have little doubt that the "smoke" which rose from Mount Hood on Saturday was, as suggested in THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN, a consequence of evaporation caused by unusual conditions. It bore precisely the appearance of a "vapor cloud," while the fact of its being unusual ought not to occasion great wonder in a country where the unusual thing is, if we may be allowed to juggle with words, a thing quite usual. That there was no repetition of the phenomenon yesterday is a circumstance favorable to the theory that it was external, for if it had been a genuine volcanic discharge it is much more than likely that the period of activity would have extended over more than a few hours. There are many, however, who believe that the cloud was either smoke or steam in fact and that it came from the depths of the mountain. It is a well known fact that there is a large crater near the summit on the western slope, a remnant, doubtless, of that "hole in the ground" of which we have heard. Many who have climbed the mountain report that sulphurous gases issue constantly from this crater, poisoning the air to a degree which often makes respiration painful and difficult.

While we do not believe that the cloud seen on Saturday was really smoke, still it may be supposed very reasonably that it was such. Mr. S. A. Clarke, the well known writer of pioneer records, said in a recent article that twice during a third of a century he has seen dense black smoke pour forth from the crater, and Prof. Powell, formerly state superintendent of public instruction, reports that at the time of his visit, some years back, the crater was discharging sulphurous heat. It is well known that Mt. St. Helens, the comparatively near neighbor of Hood, is a volcano more or less disposed to activity. It was climbed in 1875 by Hon. T. A. McBride and others, who found a crater, from which a light steam with hot and sulphurous gases constantly issued.

It is within the memory of men still living when Mount St. Helens actually "erupted." The date was Nov. 22, 1842, and the story is told by Rev. J. L. Parrish, who, with others, witnessed the extraordinary scene from the old French Prairie mission in Marion county, about seventy-five miles distant from the mountain in a direct line. Attention was called first by clouds of black smoke which filled the whole northern horizon, rolling in dense volumes about the base of the mountain. Above it was of lighter color, culminating in vast white columns, which penetrated the zenith. Smoke and steam in irregular black and white wreaths were belched out in distinct puffs, and finally great masses of rocks and clouds of ashes came forth. Red-hot lava poured down the mountain side into the near branches of the Cowlitz, a distance of five miles from the crater, heating the water and killing many fish. Flames issued from the crater during this eruption, and at intervals for several months. All was plainly seen by Mr. Parrish and those with him, but they heard no noise, owing, of course, to the distance. After the eruption ashes fell all over the country for hundreds of miles, at The Dalles to the depth of half an inch. On the following day the mountain stood calm as usual, but not in its usual aspect. It was a jet black pyramid.

It was agreed last fall among the managers of the steel rail mills of the country that only 500,000 tons of rails should be made this year. But by the end of December contracts had been made for the delivery of this whole amount, and it was then agreed that 750,000 tons should be produced. Contracts up to and including April 1, 1886, showed this amount to be insufficient, and 1,000,000 tons was then made the limit of production. This immense amount has been sold, and the steel rail mill combination have agreed to extend the production to 1,350,000 tons. These figures are significant, for the total capacity of all the steel rail mills in the country is but 1,500,000—150,000 in excess of the amount already covered by contracts and sold. This ought to be a sign of revival of business and industry.

In a letter to this paper T. G. Nicklin of Whatcom, W. T., says that the statement of a correspondent of THE OREGONIAN at that place that he is "still under indictment" for the part he took in the anti-Chinese agitation is incorrect. The indictment against him, he says, was dismissed on the 12th March, because "no evidence existed to show that he had broken the law." We judge, however, from the tone of his letter and of his paper—the Whatcom Reveille—that he helped to drive the Chinese away from Whatcom county.

Killed by a Confederate Shell.

GALVESTON, Texas, March 21.—Fred Gould, aged 18, was killed here to-day by the explosion of an old shrapnel shell which was found buried near the spot where the Confederate forces had established fortifications in 1862. Young Gould had opened five of the shells and secured the bullets within but the sixth shell exploded between his knees.

A good sharp appetite and good digestion are given by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Take it now.

MEETING NOTICES.

The transactions in real property during the week under review show a falling off in volume of business as compared with the business of the week previous.
The business of the week has been very desultory in character and devoid of any sales worthy of particular mention. Some few choice pieces of business property within the high rent district have been offered for sale, but at such prices as to scarcely warrant their purchase while business is unsatisfactory as at present. There is a fair demand for residence and suburban property for use and for speculative purposes, and there is a prospect that in the absence of any great demand for money many investments will be made in this direction.
Following are the transfers for the week:

IN MEMORIAM
At a regular meeting of Phoenix Legion No. [illegible], Select Knights, A. O. U. W., held at Legion hall on the evening of March 26, 1886, the following [illegible] were adopted:
WHEREAS, It has pleased the Supreme Commander of the Universe in His infinite wisdom to call to His home in the Supreme Legion above our beloved comrade, S. A. Moreland, in the full vigor [illegible] ended, and when least expected by those nearest and dearest to him;
Resolved, That in the death of our late comrade Moreland, the Order of the Select Knights, A. O. U. W., has lost a valued comrade from its ranks, his family an affectionate, true and loving husband and son and brother, and the community an upright and honored citizen.
Resolved, That we deeply deplore the loss of our late comrade and brother and sincerely sympathize with those who were bound to him by kindred ties.
Resolved, That the charter of this Legion be draped in mourning for the space of thirty days in memory of our late comrade.
Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the records of this Legion, and a copy thereof be transmitted to the family of our late comrade and to the papers for publication.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

BULL RUN SURVEY.—Several members of the Bull Run surveying party returned home Saturday evening. The survey is completed to a point about two miles east of the Jefferson street ferry, and the party is encamped at Hosfords, near Mount Tabor, awaiting orders. They will probably locate a site for a reservoir and make all estimates for its construction before breaking camp. There is also some talk of sending the party to Crystal springs to make a survey from that place, and it would be economy to do so if a survey is to be made, as the party is now well organized and equipped, and with the assistance of Talbot's barometer they could quickly make a survey and estimate from that place. Several members of the surveying party crossed the Jefferson street ferry late last evening and were at once "spotted" by members of the police force. One of the party met an acquaintance and reached out his hand to shake, but the acquaintance failed to recognize him and gave him the "shake" by ordering him to move on, saying he had no money for tramps. In case the survey of Crystal springs is not made, the surveying party will be in town Tuesday next and the force disbanded. The party has had rather a rough time, owing to the weather and the country. They located several trout streams and saw lots of game. A day or two since they saw ten deer, but captured none, being unarmed, and now realize the truthfulness of the old saying, "What funny things you see when you haven't got a gun."

MURDER IN THE SECOND DEGREE.—The jury in the case of the state vs. Mah Jim, charged with killing another Chinaman, returned a verdict at 10 o'clock yesterday forenoon of murder in the second degree. On a ballot the jury stood eight for conviction and four for acquittal, but compromised on the above verdict. In the afternoon an OREGONIAN reporter had a short interview with Mah Jim. He seemed in a measure satisfied with the verdict of the jury, but still asserted his innocence. Said Jim: "I don't know why the Chinamen treat me so bad. I never hurt even a rat or a chicken. I don't know why Chinaman swear that way. White man always treat me good. [illegible] after this going to be a white man." Jim wished to deny a statement that he was a member of the highbinders here, but admitted that he belonged to the order in San Francisco. Jailer Dougherty jocularly remarked to Jim that he wasn't sorry he didn't have to hang Jim, as the ghosts of all the murderers hanged since the jail was built paid him a visit monthly and disturbed his slumbers. Pointing to the back door, Ned said: "Why, the spirits open this and walk right in." Here young Martin Smallden made inquiry as to whether the ghosts ever opened the door of the corridor. "Not much," said Dougherty, "especially as long as you are in here." Smallden [illegible], having come to the conclusion that his chance of obtaining liberty by supernatural methods was rather slim.

THE GRANITE CREEK MINES.—An experienced miner from Colorado, who left there a short time since for the Granite creek mines, is in the city on his way to the Colville country. He went as far as [illegible], and from what he learned there decided not to try Granite creek. He says the paying ground found there was very limited, being in the gorge of the creek, which is only fifteen or twenty feet in width and only three or four feet to bed rock. The part of the creek in which the gold was found was very rich, and from the time the diggings were discovered in August till the season ended in November [illegible] there was taken out [illegible]. He concluded that [illegible] the limits [illegible] the diggings [illegible] exhaust [illegible] this summer [illegible]. The north fork of the [illegible] was prospected up for a long distance, but no pay dirt was found. There are rumors of some quartz ledges having been found in the vicinity, but there is nothing certain about it. Under this view of the case he concluded to try the Colville country. He [illegible] parts [illegible] he has [illegible] the [illegible] only three months long.

STATE FIREMEN'S ASSOCIATION.—The board of directors of the Firemen's association of Oregon met at the St. Charles hotel Saturday and decided upon holding the annual meeting at Salem on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, September [illegible], which it is thought will suit the interests of the various fire departments comprising the association. The resignation of Frank [illegible] Hicks of Astoria as a member of the committee was presented and accepted, and F. W. [illegible] of that city appointed to fill the vacancy. The matter of keeping time came up for discussion, and the three time keepers will hereafter be required to add the time of the two watches together and, dividing the amount by two, thus strike an average which must be taken as the official time in all contests. In making [illegible] contests competing teams will be required to make and break couplings together as heretofore, and not singly as is the practice [illegible]. A resolution was also adopted requesting companies sending delegates to the next association to instruct them as to the best means that can be adopted for raising funds for tournament purposes. The meeting throughout was harmonious, and indications are very favorable for an unusually large attendance at and an active interest in the forthcoming association and tournament.

NOT A FINANCIAL SUCCESS.—The Oregon board of pilot commissioners have some concern at present regarding the management of the pilot schooner [illegible] Moody, which was built here last October and designed for service on the bar. Through no fault of the pilots on that vessel, who are able and experienced men, the venture has not been a financial success; the pilots have little to show for a hard season of arduous toil, and the state does not receive much revenue from the enterprise. The schooner is insured for $11,000, the law which created her saying that this should come from the earnings of the pilot. She has been in port now for several days, and it is stated to be the [illegible] of the board to have the pilots give a bond in the sum of $5,000 that the insurance be kept up for two years and the vessel kept in proper trim for that space of time. The pilots are desirous to go to sea, but as the vessel is under the control of the board they must be governed by the orders of that body. Judging by the aggregate earnings since the vessel went into service, it will be some time before the state will be reimbursed for the amount expended in her construction.—Saturday's Astorian.

RECEIVER FOR A BANKRUPT FIRM.—Judge Turner, in the matter of the creditors of the firm of Scheeline Bros., has appointed F. R. Moore of this city receiver, and the stock will soon be advertised and sold. We are informed by Mr. S. I. Strickland, attorney for the creditors, that the San Francisco firms have claims of $44,956, the Portland Merchants' Protective union $20,000, including the claim of $6,000 of the Traders' National bank of this city, and relatives of the firm hold claims to the amount of $11,000. It is not definitely known what is the indebtedness to eastern creditors. Mr. Strickland informs us that the firm have for several months been selling on credit below cost and taking notes which they are discounting. A proposition was submitted by the firm to compromise for 35 cents on the dollar, but the creditors would not accept. The books of the firm have been placed out of reach of the creditors, and we are informed that Ben Scheeline is staying at Rathdrum to avoid arrest.—Spokane Falls Chronicle.

A LATE SPRING.—The cold weather of the past month has had the effect of holding back the blossoms of fruit trees, and there have not been heard from fruit growers expressions of fear usual at this season in regard to blighted blossoms and blasted hopes. Patches of snow are still to be seen lying low down on the Cascade range, and the cool air in morning and evening bear evidence of their presence. The sun is, however, gaining power as he swings higher, and at noon people seek the shady side of the street. It will not be long till the orchards will be all abloom, and the prospects for good crops of fruit were never more favorable. Strawberries, however, will be considerably later in this vicinity than they were last year, and it is probable that Southern Oregon growers of this favorite fruit will have the first chance at the market here, after California, of course.

FINE THREE-STORY STABLE.—Work will be commenced this morning by W. S. [illegible] on a stable for the United Carriage & Baggage Transfer company at the northeast corner of Second and Pine. It will be of brick, 100x100 feet, and three stories high. The lower floor will be used for carriage storeroom, baggage room and offices, the second story for stabling the horses, and the third story for hay and feed. It will be fitted up with all modern conveniences, will cost between $25,000 and $30,000, and will be the finest barn on the coast. New and larger quarters are needed by the Transfer company on account of increased business, and whenever the new building is done the present office and baggage room at Second and Stark and the stables at Sixth and Oak will be vacated and the entire business consolidated under one roof.

THE BIRDS OF SPRING.—Close on the heels of the swallow arrived the pretty little bluebird (Sialia Wilsonii), one of the first harbingers of spring, who for the past day or two has been flitting familiarly around the gardens of the city. His presence recalls the old song, once such a favorite with the [illegible] sisters in Oro Fino days, "Minnie, hear the bluebird sing in the tree above your head," which received so many encores from the theater goers of those days. The handsome glossy grosbeaks which have been around town all winter have not yet departed for their summer haunts in the forests of the Cascade range, and it is to be hoped that they may make up their minds to stay with us. They have been well treated and have become very confiding and familiar, and would be a handsome ornament to our parks and gardens.

THE OREGON & CALIFORNIA.—Mr. R. Koehler, receiver of the Oregon & California railroad, is in New York and will remain there some time yet. It is understood that his business East is to confer with the bondholders' committee of London, now in New York, who are arranging details of the proposed transfer of the Oregon & California roads to the Central Pacific. So far as the company's officials in this city are advised, the reason for the delay in the transfer (terms having been agreed on nearly a year since) is that the Central Pacific management is not satisfied with what the legal status of their new acquisition will be so far as the government and the Central Pacific is concerned.

ARRESTED FOR ALLEGED THEFT.—On the arrival of the steamship Oregon yesterday morning two Skandinavian women passengers preferred a charge of larceny against a fellow passenger named Annie Noyes. The latter was arrested, and in a little satchel in her possession was found a small open faced silver watch and a breastpin of small value, which the complainants said had been stolen from them. Mrs. Noyes was arrested and taken to the city jail.

PASTOR RESIGNS.—Yesterday morning, at the regular services, Rev. E. Trumbull Lee, pastor of the Calvary Presbyterian church, notified his congregation that he would tender his resignation to the Presbytery of Oregon. This body meets at Corvallis on Tuesday, April 13 next. Mr. Lee is as yet undecided as to his future movements.

THE CŒUR D'ALENE MINES.

Plenty of Evidence of Prosperity—Chat with a Portlander, who Tells About what he Saw.

Last Saturday a well known business man of this city returned from a trip to Spokane Falls. Being so close to the Cœur d'Alene mines he determined to see them himself. He went in on the Thompson Falls route to Murray, and gives it as his opinion that if the stage company want to hold the passenger traffic they will do well to put on better stock and give a trifle better accommodations. He arrived at Murray on the 14th and met a number of Portland people there who are interested in and seem well pleased with the country and its prospects. Murray, the principal town, has about 1,000 inhabitants, two hotels well filled, one bank and a number of mercantile establishments which seem to do a very fair business. People are coming in quite rapidly. A party of Illinois people arrived while he was there. He visited the principal quartz mines in the vicinity of Murray, starting in with the Golden Chest Mining Company of Louisville, Kentucky, the Pioneer Mining Company, and owners of the first quartz mill built in the country, a ten-stamp mill which has been running now for nearly a year, and the company have realized more than the original investment. The output of the mine has been in the neighborhood of [illegible]. The first eight months the mill was only [illegible] stamps, the additional stamps [illegible] having been recently added.

The next [illegible] of Louisville. They [illegible] mill [illegible] developing their property [illegible]. Next he visited the Gold [illegible]. They have employed a large number of men for the past six months [illegible] a twenty-stamp mill [illegible] the ground. The property is under the management of R. A. [illegible], superintendent. He also saw the property of the Denver & Ferris ditch company on [illegible], consisting of a bedrock flume [illegible] of the gulch and a ditch built last year at an expense of $[illegible] to carry water over the mountains to use in washing the gravel in the gulch. They are employing now about sixty men. The Bedrock flume company of New York, who expended some $[illegible] there last year, have reorganized and will start up operations about the 10th of April, their contractor, John Ryan, having just returned from Denver to take charge of the work. He also visited the property of the Portland company, comprising sixty acres of placer ground below the mouth of Trail gulch at Delta, with ditches, hydraulic apparatus, etc. They are just cleaning out their ditch [illegible], getting ready to resume operations.

There is a great deal of snow in the country yet and the nights are cold, which retards hydraulic operations. None of the hydraulic properties are at work yet, but all are getting ready.

It is estimated that not less than $1,000,000 will be expended this year by the several enterprises. The Bedrock flume company have let a contract for [illegible] feet [illegible], and they will probably have to expend $[illegible] for the purchase of claims from the Cœur d'Alene river to the mouth of the creek [illegible] a length of eight miles.

Helena Capitalists to Erect Smelting Works which Portland Refused to Do.

Three or four weeks ago Mr. J. J. Warburton of Murray, Idaho, a gentleman largely interested in Cœur d'Alene mines, visited this city for the purpose of learning definitely whether smelting works would be established here or not. He promised that the Cœur d'Alene district alone would furnish enough ore to keep a [illegible] smelter running for at least a year. After interviewing the Board of Trade, who had tried to establish the enterprise, Mr. Warburton was informed that smelting works were no go. He then went to Helena. With what success may be learned from the following clipping from the Helena Herald of the 21st:

No more significant [illegible] of the enterprise and [illegible] spirit of Helena's capitalists [illegible] found than in the recent organization of the [illegible] concentrating company. Articles of incorporation have been filed in the office of the territorial secretary for a company bearing that name, with a capital stock of $100,000. Some of the wealthiest and most enterprising of Helena's capitalists are numbered among the incorporators, whose standing as successful mining operators and prudent business men has long been established in this territory. The officers elected for the first three months are S. T. Hauser president, A. M. Holter vice president and general manager, A. M. Holt treasurer, W. E. Cox secretary.

The object of the new company, as announced in the articles of incorporation, is the mining, concentrating, milling and smelting of gold and silver ores in Shoshone county, Idaho. The erection of works will be at once commenced at [illegible], a small town about twenty-eight miles from Murray, the center of the Cœur d'Alene mining region, and ten miles from the head of navigation on Cœur d'Alene river. The first of June next will see the works in operation, with a daily capacity of fifty tons. The site for the works is well chosen, as the country on all sides is rich in [illegible] mines whose product can be brought to [illegible]. The place is [illegible] easy of access from the outside world by a route from Rathdrum on the Northern Pacific railroad, involving twenty miles of staging and sixty miles of steamboating on the Cœur d'Alene lake and river. Thus the works will be so situated that they will lay tributary the wealthy mines of the Cœur d'Alene country and command an easy and always practicable outlet for the bullion and concentrates they produce. The new company has already secured a contract from J. F. Wardner & Co. for concentrating 50,000 tons of ore from the Cœur d'Alene mines—a work that will keep their plant busy for two years after its completion.

Messrs. Hauser and Holter, two prominent members of the company, are among the wealthiest of Montana's bonanza kings, and the enlistment of their capital and enterprise to aid in developing the great resources of the Cœur d'Alene country will no doubt be hailed with acclamation by residents and mine owners in that section. This new mining district promises to become an important part of the ore producing region of the northwest, and the building of mills and smelters as contemplated by the Helena company will operate to hasten its development.

LEXINGTON, MORROW COUNTY.

LEXINGTON, Or., March [illegible].
TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The new town of Lexington, located on Willow creek, about thirty miles above where it empties into the Columbia river, is one of the most pleasantly located towns in Eastern Oregon. Travelers through the country east of the Cascade range cannot fail to notice the fact that most of the towns and villages here are almost invariably located in narrow, deep canyons along the water courses, thus completely shut in from all view of the surrounding country. In pleasing contrast to her elder sisters, the town site of Lexington has been admirably chosen, as it occupies a commanding and perfect view of the surrounding landscape. From its principal street a pretty glimpse of the Blue mountains is obtained. Though more than twenty miles away, its rugged outlines and towering pine trees are distinctly outlined, so transparent is the atmosphere. From the slightly elevated plateau west of the town a fine view of Mount Hood and Mount Adams is also secured.

Situated as it is in an amphitheatre of gently rolling prairie lands capable of producing grain crops of almost every variety, [illegible] fruits and vegetables, the new town of Lexington has very [illegible] prospects of a bright and prosperous future, and will undoubtedly become a place of considerable importance. Although but a year old, it already presents [illegible] is a lively, enterprising and interesting [illegible] newspaper will [illegible].

Again, situated as it is in the center of Morrow county and in the heart of as rich agricultural land as ever the sun shone on, the location of Lexington is assured as the terminal point of a branch railroad in conjunction with the Oregon Railway & Navigation company's line, which the enormous quantity produced in this section the coming season will demand. M.

BRIEF MENTION.

The celebrated Red Stocking minstrel troupe appear at the New theater to-night. The company has a great reputation.

The box sheet for Manager Thompson's benefit will be open to-morrow morning at McKercher & Thompson's.

The cantata of "Ruth" will be given by the Portland Choral union in Y. M. C. A. hall to-morrow night, commencing at 8 o'clock sharp.

Two hundred and four immigrants are to arrive to-day by the Pacific express.

Deputy U. S. Marshal G. W. Barnhart, of Albany, will arrive here to-day having in charge a man calling himself John H. Young, who was captured at the Indian camp near that city, charged with selling liquor to Indians.

The Oregon arrived here at 3:30 yesterday. She was delayed one day at sea by stormy weather and strong head winds, and reached Astoria Saturday morning, leaving up at 4 o'clock. She ran into a fog bank above Tongue point and had to anchor for over four hours. It was dead low water at Walker's island and she had to wait for the tide until 9 P. M. She brought 171 passengers.

QUERY FOR THE SCHOOL BOARD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

It seems that some of the teachers have been in the habit of detaining their whole class for half an hour or so after school hours because four or five of the members misbehaved themselves. Therefore,

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this board that rule 10 is frequently violated by the teachers of this district.

Resolved, That we as a board disapprove, etc.

Resolved, That the respective principals be instructed, etc.

The above is from the record of the school board meeting last Friday evening.

Does it not occur to the honorable school board that they, by these resolutions, are doing just what they condemn in certain teachers? The school board rightly declare that teachers shall not punish a whole class of pupils for the misbehavior of a few; at the same time, they pass a resolution [illegible] just a whole corps of teachers because some have been in the habit, etc. They probably acted from the same motives as those teachers, also. It is easier to punish all than to take the necessary time and trouble to ascertain who the guilty few are. Any teacher needing this resolution so fails in all sense of justice, that the surest way of curing the evil is to dismiss him. How much longer will our honorable school board persist in the ridiculous practice of seeking to cure constitutional defects in certain teachers by passing general resolutions?
A FORMER TEACHER.

THE EAST SIDE.

The Piratical Pulse—Publisher's Troubles—Prohibition Club Meeting To-night—Personal and General Notes.

PROHIBITION CLUB MEETING.

D. J. [illegible], secretary of the East Portland prohibition club, has issued a call for a meeting of that body this evening at W. C. T. U. hall, corner Fifth and J streets, the hour stated being 8 o'clock. At this meeting a plan of action for the coming campaign will be discussed and the selection of delegates to the county convention will be looked into. Every sympathizer with the prohibition movement, whether a member of the club or not, is cordially invited to come and take part.

PERSECUTION.

The Piratical Pulse poster, which was attached Saturday evening [illegible]. His ebony whiskers should, as a matter of fact, be fed by the gods upon ambrosial sweets. But then Cully is so far away from the Olympic barracks that he will have to [illegible] a broken sort of way upon ordinary fare until his wanderings cease.

NOTES.

Mrs. J. H. Willis is [illegible] friends.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. [illegible] removed on Saturday to their cottage, corner H and Eighth streets.

Edward [illegible] will this week let the contract for a handsome cottage to be built on the corner of Sixteenth and H streets.

S. Bullock departed on the Atlantic express Saturday evening for Salem, where he will remain during the present week.

Mrs. Claggett, known to all the people of East Portland as Grandma Claggett, has been quite ill for several days past, but is improving.

Rev. A. J. Graves will continue the revival services at the Baptist church during this and the two following evenings. The auditorium is filled nightly with greatly interested hearers.

The work of putting in the machinery for the Portland Creamery company in Logus's building progresses favorably, and everything will doubtless be in readiness for operations on the 1st prox.

Frasier Bros., the printers, will connect their press with the steam engine to be used by the creamery company, and after the 1st of April their work will be done [illegible].

[illegible] groups [illegible] upon the street corners to learn the latest [illegible] among all parties [illegible].

On next Thursday evening Rev. S. F. Wise proposes holding, at the M. E. church in this city, a [illegible] day prayer meeting, at which time the subject of foreign missions and mission work will be especially discussed. A feeling of interest in such matters is [illegible]. A general invitation is extended.

THE NEWS OF SATURDAY

Following is a summary of the news of Saturday printed in full in THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN:

THE EAST.

The house [illegible] west [illegible] strikes.

In the house of representatives the day was principally consumed in discussion of the silver question. The senate was not in session.

The national council of the Union League held its annual session at Washington. C. H. Grosvenor was elected president for the ensuing year.

On Friday two car loads of coffee [illegible] from San Francisco were sold [illegible] at prices [illegible] New York prices.

In the typesetting contest in Philadelphia, Duguid of [illegible] took the first prize, and McCann of New York [illegible]. Duguid exceeded all previous records, his composition being [illegible] ems in three hours.

There was little change in the situation at St. Louis. Freight trains were sent out by the boycotted [illegible] under police protection. It was stated that twenty companies of United States troops were en route to St. Louis from Columbus, O. Powderly asked Jay Gould for a conference at New York, but the latter, on advice of the board of directors of the Missouri Pacific, refused.

The river and harbor appropriations bill as completed by the house committee makes a total appropriation of $[illegible], which will become available immediately upon the passage of the bill. Among the items are the following: Coos bay entrance, $35,000; Yaquina bay, $50,000; Upper Columbia river, including Snake river, $10,000; [illegible] of Columbia river, $[illegible]; Lower Willamette and Columbia rivers, $100,000; Upper Willamette, $10,000; [illegible]; Chehalis, $[illegible]; [illegible] Skagit, Stillaguamish, Nooksack, Snohomish and Snoqualmie rivers, $10,000.

THE COAST.

In the trot at the Bay District park, San Francisco, Kitty [illegible] beat [illegible]. Best time [illegible].

Scarcely any tickets to the East are being sold on the San Francisco railroad lines, the bottom being apparently dropped out of passenger business.

Wm. Bybee, a prominent pioneer of Jackson county, has been arrested on a charge of killing his nephew, Thomas J. Bybee. There was a feud between them over some land matters, and not long ago the murdered man shot his uncle William in the leg, for which he was under indictment, the case coming before the April term of court. The arrest has caused intense excitement.

FOREIGN.

The reichstag has rejected Prince Bismarck's spirit monopoly bill.

Property of immense value has been destroyed by strikers in and around Charleroi, Belgium. In the city there is a reign of terror. Troops fired upon the mob, killing twenty and wounding many more. In Brussels a similar state of affairs exists.

Joseph Chamberlain, president of the local government board, and Trevelyan, secretary for Scotland, have resigned from the British ministry. The Right Hon. James Stansfeld, radical member of parliament for Halifax, succeeds Chamberlain, and the Earl of Dalhousie takes Trevelyan's place.

LADIES' RELIEF SOCIETY.

The members of the advisory committee of the Ladies' Relief Society are hereby requested to meet at 10 o'clock this morning at Mrs. [illegible]'s. Fifteen minutes will be sufficient if the committee are punctual at the hour.
MARY H. HOLBROOK, President.

THE STAGE.

THE CASINO.—To-night "The Merry War" begins its second week. Last night's house was the largest of the season, and the week's business has been the heaviest in the history of the house.

Mrs. Dekcater, late of Chicago, will open a first class dressmaking establishment about the 1st of April at [illegible] First street, over Willamette Savings bank. Ladies wishing first class work done in latest styles will do well to call on her.

Mrs. [illegible] H. Clarke has fixed March 31st as the date of opening at her millinery parlors. This will be one of the finest displays ever offered at Mrs. Clarke's, and the ladies should all remember the [illegible].

When Baby was sick we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children she gave them Castoria.

CHEHALIS NOTES.

CHEHALIS, March 28.

There was a pleasant W. C. T. U. sociable at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Hurd, Thursday night.

It is reported that some Eastern parties are talking of establishing a hosiery and woolen factory at this town.

About fifty Missouri immigrants arrived at Winlock last Tuesday. That town will soon receive another "invoice" of Tennessee settlers.

Fishing season will soon open again. The north fork of the Newaukum river, about ten miles from here, abounds with beautiful mountain trout.

Somebody, evidently contemplating building a house soon, last week stole all the hinges, door locks and knobs off the Lewis county agricultural building.

Chehalis has a Chinaman named Fong who associates almost entirely with white people. He says that he is so strongly attached to the people here that he would rather suffer death itself than leave.

Taking advantage of the cheap railroad rates, Mr. N. B. [illegible] and wife and Henry [illegible] and wife will start next Tuesday for a long visit to their old home at Worcester, Mass. The wife of Hon. J. H. Lamb also will go East in a week or so.

The Hon. Thomas Fitch, the "silver-tongued orator of the West," addressed a large, attentive and appreciative audience at the Presbyterian church last night. His subject was the "Invisible Police," [illegible] refutation of the [illegible] of Bob Ingersoll. Mr. Fitch is an eloquent orator.

The directors of the Lewis county agricultural association had a meeting yesterday, and it was decided to hold the annual fair early this year, before the commencement of the bad weather. A [illegible] department of the fair's show with competent judges will be added. [illegible] Lewis county is the best agricultural county in the territory west of the Cascade mountains, and consequently always excels in the beauty, size and variety of her products.

The Chinese must go. And rheumatism will go after an application of St. Jacobs Oil.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

THE FIGHT FOR MISSOURI, from the election of Lincoln to the Death of Lyon. By Thomas L Snead New York Charles Scribner's Sons Price, $1. For sale by W B. Ayer & Co

Mr Snead was aide de camp of Claiborne F Jackson, governor of Missouri in 1861, and chief of staff of the Army of the West, member of the Confederate congress, and the apology he makes for writing this book is that he is the only person now living who has knowledge of what he records. But no apology was necessary No one who reads this history of the outbreak of the civil war in Missouri can fail to admire the remarkable ability displayed by its author in recording historical facts just as he finds them, concisely and in well-chosen language, with evident fairness,—indeed, with almost judicial impartiality It would be difficult to find, among the many books written by officers who served either in the national or Confederate armies, one that contains less special argument in support of the opinions, sentiments or prejudices that almost invariably warp the judgment of less fair minded historians than the author of "The Fight for Missouri" He conscientiously believed in the right of the South to secede, and when the time came exchanged the pen for the sword, leaving his home in St Louis, and not revisiting it until after the collapse of the Confederacy four years afterward He aided in the enlistment, organization, and command of the army that, had it not been for the Federal forces under Lyon and Blair, would have overrun Missouri and carried that state out of the Union Notwithstanding this, and the fact that he fought and fought well to the bitter end for the cause he believed to be both right and just, some of those who served the Confederacy less faithful, perhaps than he did, might be disposed to charge him with yielding too much in the discussion of that part of the history of the war of which he writes There is a straightforward frankness about Col Snead's narrative that commends it to the reader and the book will no doubt will be found to be as important as it is an interesting and well written contribution to the history of the civil war

LETTERS TO DEAD AUTHORS By Andrew Lang New York Charles Scribner's Sons, publishers Price, $1 For sale by W B Ayer & Co

It was a "happy thought" of the editor of the St James Gazette, which prompted him to suggest to Mr Lang the writing of these epistles to dead authors Mr Lang is a graceful poet, a brilliant essayist and an accomplished scholar The letters cover a wide field, ranging from Thackeray and Dickens to Omar Khayyam and Horace, and are twenty two in number The letters are in a great degree adapted in tone and style to the authors to whom they are addressed, and embody the results of the world's judgment on the merits of their productions Mr Lang writes to Thackeray that "fiction in your hands was not simply a profession, like another but a constant reflection of the whole surface of life—a repeated echo of its laughter and its complaint" and closes by telling him that he "must survive with Shakespeare and Cervantes in the memory and affection of men

To Dickens he writes that time is at last beginning to sift his true admirers from the false "Yours, sir," he says, "in the best sense of the word, is a popular success a popular reputation How poor the world of fancy would be," he continues, "how dispeopled of her dreams," if in some ruin of the social system the books of Dickens were lost In the letter to Pierre de Ronsard, "master and prince of poets" the author shows an intimate acquaintance with the old French poets, while his epistle to Herodotus shows an equal familiarity with the writings of the "Father of History" He writes to Pope in Popean measures and propounds a leading question in the opening lines

"From mortal Gratitude decide my Pope
Have Wits Immortal more to fear or hope

In the brief preface of the work the author says "Some of the letters are written rather to suit the correspondent than to express the writer's own taste or opinions The epistle to Lord Byron, especially is writ in a manner which is my aversion" The volume will find appreciative readers among all lovers of good literature

HISTORY OF RUSSIA, by M Alfred Rambaud, translated by Leonora B Lang, 2 vols, price $1 75, John B Alden, New York

The era of cheap books has dawned, when a publisher sends out two large 12mo volumes in long primer type, in fine cloth and gilt top, library style, for $1 75 and yet this is what John B Alden, of New York is doing with the "History of Russia," by Alfred Rambaud The work has long been recognized as the best history of Russia in the English language The cheapest edition heretofore attainable was at a cost of $6. The present edition is furnished at less than one-third the former cost. The paper is good, the maps and portraits are also fairly good The author is a member of the French Academy of Sciences, and the work has the indorsement of that body The translation is by Leonora B. Lang Russia is a vast country Its ninety millions of people are slowly emerging from a primitive condition Russia has more than once attempted the role of arbitrator for all Europe The dream of power, and especially of that which shall crowd the Turk out of Europe, comes nearer every day to an awakening A good history of Russia is a book for the times. The qualities of such a history are found in these volumes, viz Veracity, research and a good literary style

THE MEXICAN GUIDE By Thomas A Janvier With Maps Charles Scribner's Sons, New York Price, $2 For sale by W B Ayer & Co

Guide books are too often written by persons incapable of anything else, who lend to the pages a dreariness which deepens the gloom of the ordinary traveler, removed for a time from the habits and comforts of home Mr Janvier has boiled down much information into some 300 pages, using Mexican and Spanish historians and the aid of men as well as books, not to speak of his own knowledge of Mexico City acquired in several prolonged stays there as assistant editor of a paper issued in English But this information is spiced with the light humor which appeared in "Color Studies" and other fiction by Mr Janvier, so that without obtruding the author it serves to remind the listless traveler that there is a living person, not a statistical cipher, behind the pages. The maps of the city and its environs are authorized by the minister of public works in 1885, Gen Carlos Pacheco, and are separate, being stowed away in the covers after the approved fashion There was great need of such a guide book as this, and it will be of much more service as the railways improve between New York and Mexico, and thousands, instead of hundreds, visit that wonderful plateau

THE HERO OF COWPENS. A revolutionary sketch By Rebecca McConkey Funk & Wagnalls, New York For sale by W B Ayer & Co.

Miss McConkey's perusal of Graham's Life of Morgan has filled her with a blind enthusiasm for this revolutionary hero, and with an uncontrollable spirit of protest against the showers of less deserved praise and honor that have been poured upon the other generals who took a leading part in the war of independence Had she conducted her "historical argument" when in a less feverish state of mind and with even a show of consideration for what other people have to say about the subject, her readers might be more ready to look to her "Pen Portraits of our Revolutionary Heroes and Mock Heroes, for much that would reflect the military genius of the man who "stormed Quebec, rushed into the "Great Redout" at Saratoga and rode down Ben Tarleton on the field of Cowpens The book has some very good portraits and bad maps

HISTORICAL ESSAYS By James Anthony Froude John B. Alden, New York

In putting before the public this little volume of selections from "Short Studies on Great Subjects," the publishers have made another welcome addition to their library of standard literature Herein are given Froude's three lectures on the times of Erasmus and Luther, as well as the essays on Spinoza and Homer The volume is valuable not only for the interest and instructiveness of the subject matter, but as showing to special advantage the author's ease, grace and vigor of style

SNOW-BOUND AT EAGLES By Bret Harte Houghton, Mifflin & Co, Boston

This last volume of Bret Harte is not so barren of dramatic incidents as "Maruja" It consistently adheres to the plan of making saints out of abandoned women, gamblers and road agents There was at first a novelty in this audacity But after a while the method becomes a little stale. All the probabilities are strained. In the present volume the road agent is exaltsd and the office of fiction is used to turn a stage-robbing rascal into a chivalrous and altogether commendable gentleman. That is the moral.

A PILOTAGE CASE.

U S District Court District of Oregon

Thursday March 25, 1886

THE ABERCORN J E Campbell, libellant—No 1344

ON PILOTAGE ON COLUMBIA RIVER—RIGHT OF MASTER TO CHOOSE PILOT The Columbia river is the boundary between two states—Oregon and Washington—within the purpose and spirit of § 4236 of the R S, and therefore the state of Oregon cannot require a vessel bound in or out of said river to take an Oregon pilot or pay him half or any pilotage if the master thereof prefers to and does take a Washington pilot

DEADY, J

This suit was commenced on December 2, 1885 to recover the sum of $176 for half pilotage

It was heard on February 15, on an exception to the answer, and the decision has since been delayed to suit the convenience of counsel

It is alleged in the libel, that the libellant, J E Campbell, is and since prior to October 10, 1885, has been, a duly licensed pilot under the law of Oregon and the United States, for the Columbia river bar, attached to the pilot boat Governor Moody, and that on or about said October 10 he piloted the British bark, Abercorn from the sea over the bar to Astoria that afterward, and before the commencement of this suit, said vessel was lying at Astoria, drawing twenty feet of water and bound out to sea, when the libellant offered his services to the master to pilot her over the bar, which offer was refused and said vessel is going to sea with a pilot other than one belonging to said boat, whereof the libellant is entitled to receive the value of the services so tendered and refused namely the sum of $176

The answer of James Laidlaw, the agent of the owners, substantially admits the allegation of the libel and as a defense thereto, alleges that at and before the tender of pilot service by the libellant, the master of the Abercorn had employed Alexander Malcolm who was a duly licensed pilot under the law of Washington and the United States, to pilot said vessel to sea, and that said Alexander Malcolm did thereafter so pilot the same for which he was duly paid [illegible]

The libellant excepts to this defense as insufficient

By the Oregon pilot act of October 21, 1882, the pilot commissioners for the Columbia river and bar, may license as many bar pilots as they may deem necessary and such pilots must keep a seaworthy boat of a certain tonnage on the pilot ground (Sess Laws p [illegible])

Section [illegible] of the act provides that

"A pilot who brings a vessel in over the bar is entitled to pilot her to sea when next she leaves the river but the commissioners may allow the master to take another pilot from the same boat.

The object of this section was to [illegible] a pilot for cruising off shore for vessels bound into the river, by giving him the exclusive right to the comparatively easy and lucrative service of taking a vessel out that he had been at the trouble of finding and bringing in And by [illegible] of the act (Sess Laws p [illegible]) it is provided that if such pilot's offer of service is declined by the master he shall pay him half pilotage A claim for pilotage on such grounds may be enforced in the admiralty either against the master or the vessel The Glencairne, 7 Saw, 582.

By [illegible] of the act of February [illegible] 1885 Sess Laws p [illegible] the pilot commissioners were required to fund a pilot boat at the expense of the state for the use of the bar pilots licensed by them, which it is well understood has been done and that the vessel mentioned in the libel, the Governor Moody, to which the libellant is attached, is the boat The object of this legislation, so far as appears was to deprive the tug boats at the mouth of the river of the privilege of carrying bar pilots or being in any way engaged in the pilot service The result is so well known that it may be mentioned here as a fact The pilots connected with the tugs have taken out licenses as bar pilots under the law of Washington, and are piloting vessels over the bar in connection with the towage service Hence this controversy The pilot Malcolm is a Washington pilot, and doubtless cruises on one of the tugs, and when he piloted the Abercorn to sea he did so as what may be called a tug pilot, in contradistinction to a schooner pilot

Congress having the power to regulate commerce, may regulate pilotage as a matter pertaining thereto, on the navigable waters of the United States But until congress exercises such power the state may make such regulations The Glencairne, 7 Saw, 582.

By the act of March 2, 1837 (5 Stat. [illegible] § 4236 R S) congress provided that

"The master of any vessel coming into or going out of any port situate upon waters which are the boundary between two states may employ any pilot duly licensed or authorized by the laws of either of the states bounded on such waters to pilot the vessel to or from such port

It is well known that this act grew out of the "pilot war" between New York and New Jersey, in which each state undertook to secure its pilots some exclusive privilege or advantage and the pilot ground in and about the mouth of the Hudson

In the case of The Panama (1 Deady 31), this court held that the territory of Washington is a "state" within the purpose and spirit of this legislation and this ruling was followed in The [illegible], 9 Saw, 611

Assuming, then that this § 4236 of the revised statutes is applicable to pilotage on the Columbia river, the boundary between Oregon and Washington, this suit cannot be maintained

As between the Oregon pilots, doubtless the regulation compelling the master of a vessel to take the pilot out of the river that brought him in is valid and binding But the state cannot compel a vessel in the Columbia river to take an Oregon pilot under any circumstances, or to pay him half or any pilotage, if the master prefers to, and does take a Washington pilot.

The matter is too plain for argument and only needs to be stated, to be understood The act of congress is paramount, and no regulation of the state can impair or limit its operation

As applied to the facts and circumstances of this case, it declares in effect, that the master of any vessel, whether bound in or out of the Columbia river may take a pilot from either Oregon or Washington, without any reference to the fact of which offered his services first or whether either of them had served as pilot on the vessel before

The libel is dismissed and the respondent is entitled to a decree for costs and disbursements

Mr Raleigh Stott, for libellant

Mr Henry Ach, for the respondent.

DEATH OF CAPT. WADDELL

Capt. James Iredell Waddell, notorious as the commander of the rebel privateer Shenandoah, died at Baltimore, March 15, from congestion of the brain, being nearly 62 years old He was a North Carolinian, and was in the United States navy when the war broke out having distinguished himself by several services, the latest as leader of an expedition into the interior of China in 1860. He resigned his commission the next year, entered the Confederate navy as a lieutenant in the spring of 1862 and was sent to Europe in 1863 on a special mission He did not return to American shores until after the rebellion was at an end The Lairds were busy in building the Confederate navy and he waited for the Shenandoah, which was an English vessel, adapted and rechristened for privateering He took command of her at an off-lying isle of the Madeira group, in October, 1864, and sailed southward, captured a few vessels near St. Helena doubled the cape of Good Hope, cruised in the Indian ocean awhile then put in at Melbourne, where he coaled, provisioned and staid for twenty days This was the only stop in port the Shenandoah made in thirteen months. Thence she sailed February 8, 1865, for the North Pacific whaling fields, and spent the summer in the easy task of destroying whalers, completely breaking up the whaling season in those regions. Capt. Waddell was notified by several of his victims that the Confederate armies had surrendered, but this did not make any difference with him, and he continued to cruise and destroy until four months after the fall of Richmond, when the commander of a British ship at sea informed him of the end of the war, and he sailed for Liverpool In November, 1865, he turned the Shenandoah over to the English government She had sailed some 60,000 miles and captured thirty eight vessels of various sorts, principally whalers, thirty two of which were destroyed and six released on bond The losses were $1,150,000, though the claims for damages amounted to $6,000,000 The Shenandoah was one of the vessels for whose depredations the English government was compelled to pay. When Capt. Waddell returned to this country he entered the service of the Pacific Mail company as captain. Two years ago he came into notice for his efficient service as commander of the Maryland oyster police force in breaking up the oyster piracy on Chesapeake bay, by attacking a fleet of dredgers with howitzers and rifles.

COMMERCIAL.

SATURDAY, March 27.

Weather fair and warm The drying winds of the last few days have given encouragement to field work, and reports from the interior say farmers are busy This has some effect upon produce shipments they showing some falling off Rail freights from the East show some lessening in the past three days, yet are of considerable volume By steamer freights are active Wholesalers here and interior traders are stocking up the call from the last named being large of late With an adjustment of freight rates trade must rule dull for a time At this time there is no promise of a settlement

The Baltimore oyster packers have agreed not to pack any oysters after the 1st of April under a penalty of $1000 The oyster season has heretofore continued until the 1st of May each year but the oyster beds in Chesapeake bay have been so depleted that it is feared they may be destroyed

WOOL As yet the local market is without business and it is impossible to give figures [illegible] about 16@21 c would be the very extreme for choice The Boston Shipping List says the week ended 20th inst was the dullest for a year only 300 [illegible] lbs domestic being sold Manufacturers hold back and do not believe in stocking up to any extent with the labor question is settled The strikes have already materially reduced the production of goods and there is no prospect of any scarcity of wool especially as Texas and California will soon be on the market It appears doubtful if present prices for wool can be maintained Prices are easy and holders are anxious to sell The tariff agitation has also an influence on the market which tends to keep things quiet Some buyers have already left for the West but it is not likely that they will commence operations should the market open high

A STANDARD REMEDY.

J W WINDOM Baker City Oregon writes "I take pleasure in stating that I have handled WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY for the past fifteen years and I have yet to hear the first complaint of its not giving satisfaction It is one of the best selling remedies I have on my shelves and I can conscientiously recommend it as a reliable standard preparation

C A PLUMMER & CO Portland Oregon write During [illegible] years experience in the retail drug business in Albany, in this state we noted the sale of WISTAR'S BALSAM increase from year to year without special advertisement We have heard many encomiums of its efficiency from our best customers, and believe the sale could be permanently and largely increased by judicious advertising, as it has proved its merit when once introduced
